"The land is open to your seed,
And would youghin provent my pigs
From restning there shar' in surfaces,
God knows I view this compromise
With not-the most approxime eyes,
I fave up my unquestioned rights
For sake of quiet days and nights, I offered then, you know 't is true,'
To cut the piece of land in two."
"Then cut it now," growls North

"Abate
You heat," says South, "it is now no late;
I colfreed you be cody ceram,
But you, of your corn good the scener,
Briande D'alash it, I am serry;
No doubt you might have found a quarry,
Perhaps a good-inse, for aught I know,
Containing hetps of astive failing,
You can't apped me to resign
My right "...

"But where," quoth North, "are mine.
"Your rights," says tother, "well, that's finny,
I bought the land"—

Sonaying, South begin to 'whistle
And looked as obstituate as gristle,
White North want homeward, each brown paw
Clenched like a knot of natural law,
And all the while, in either ear,
Heard something clicking wondrous clear.
